Editor At U of Alberta Keeps Seat

EDMONTON, Jan. 22 (CUP) — The students Council of the University of Alberta Tuesday night refused to let the editor of the student newspaper give up his non-voting seat on the Council.

Joe Clark, Editor of the Gateway, had asked that he no longer be required to sit as a member of Council. He suggested that the editor serves no good purpose on the Alberta Council and that his presence might be used to levy undue influence upon the opinions and the editorial freedom of the paper.

Councillors contended that no such influence had occurred in the past, and suggested that there was little danger of it coming now. They also said that it was convenient for Council to have the editor on hand so he could report on the activities of his paper.

The Gateway is the only major student organization with a seat on Council. Clark argued that if the paper should sit and report, so should other groups financed by the students union.

However, councillors said the newspaper was different from other students union organizations because of its activity and influence.

During the debate P. J. Clooney, NFCS Chairman at Alberta, said "it would be a great tragedy" if the editor were allowed to leave Council. Clooney suggested the editor asked to be taken off council for "selfish reasons," but did not elaborate.

In the final vote, only one councillor supported the motion that the editor be allowed to relinquish his seat. Twelve members voted against the motion and nine abstained.

The meeting, which will be chaired by Dr. D.L. Mordell, Dean of the Faculty of Engineering, will begin with an address by the Soviet Ambassador. This is to be followed by a period of questions from the floor which should prove to be both interesting and informative.

Dr. Aroutunian is one of the Soviet Unions foremost educators. He is a doctor of economics and political economy and has edited a number of research works dealing with his subject. The Soviet ambassador has also attended several international conferences including the U.N. San Francisco Conference in '45 and the Paris Peace Conference of '46.

Dean Mordell, the chairman of the meeting, is a graduate of Cambridge where he received his M.A. He joined the staff of McGill after the war and was made Dean of the Faculty of Engineering in 1957.

The Debating Union pointed out that this address should be of great interest to all students in light of the recent criticisms of our educational system in comparison to that of the Soviet Union. The speech will advance a different viewpoint on this topic as it will come from the Soviet side of the fence.

The address is part of the Debating Union's public debate series which is run each year to bring both interesting and topical subjects before the student body and the public at large.

McGill Prof Heads Stock Exchange

Prof. Eric William Kierans, Director of the School of Commerce, has been appointed the new president of the Montreal Stock Exchange and Canadian Stock Exchange, it was announced at a press conference today. At age 46, he succeeds Henry G. Norman who resigned last October.

On assuming his new duties, Prof. Kierans will sever his connection with McGill at the conclusion of the current academic year. He will be officially installed in his new office in April.

When contacted by the McGill Daily, Prof. Kierans had this to say on the future of Canada: "It is quite clear that one of the problems facing Canada in the next decade will be that of financing her economic growth. Strong capital markets which will translate the savings of Canadians into investment in their basic industries and natural resources is essential if we are to take full advantage of our opportunities for development. Security Exchanges make liquid the securities of these investors and inspire confidence. The Exchanges have many plans which will strengthen their position in the financial structure of Canada."

In introducing Prof. Kierans to the press, E. H. McAteer, chairman of the Montreal Stock Exchange, said that the Exchange is very fortunate to acquire "the special investment talents of Mr. Kierans which will now be made available to the investment industry."

Prof. Kierans said that while he had acquired certain views with respect to investment at McGill, nonetheless it will take a little time to study and apply them to the investment industry generally.

The new president brings a vast background of business experience to his new post. He has been active in economics, commerce, money and banking. In

PROF. ERIC KIERANS

1945, he founded the Canadian Adhesives Limited, a private company which he still owns. Besides this, he formerly was a part owner of Hygiene Products Company Limited.

Prof. Kierans joined McGill in 1953 as a full professor in the Department of Economics and Political Science. In September of the same year he was appointed Director of the School of Commerce. In addition to these positions he also holds the directorship of Purvis Hall and of Duggan Hall.

Dignitaries Speak At Gen-Nite

by SHEILA GOLDSTEIN

Six eminent representatives of the business world spoke at Gen-Nite yesterday on the various fields open to graduates of Commerce.

The first speaker of the evening was Mr. Howard Ross, C.A., O.B.E., and Senior Partner of Ross Touche & Co., Chartered Accountants, who discussed the field of Accounting, which he called the "language of business." He pointed out that management looks to the Public Accountant; banks and credit houses rely on him to give a professional opinion of the company's worth. Accounting also leads to the field of General Business Managements, as many prominent executives are C.A.'s.

Mr. Ross cited the qualities of good judgment and integrity as the necessities for a career as a C.A.

The "Intangible" field of Investment was the topic expounded on by Mr. Hamilton Bolton, President of Bolton Tremblay & Co., Investment Consultants. This field can be entered in a number of ways, and many C.A.'s are today participating in it.

"It is necessary to look at this field as an investment on your part for a number of years," said Mr. Bolton, "because profits are not immediately forthcoming, as in other fields."

Mr. Jacques Gagnon, Manager of Industrial Relations Division of Aluminium Co. of Canada, spoke on Industrial Relations.

The "human element" is the important one here. A Personnel Manager must be able to weld the people of a large organization into a functioning unit. He creates the proper climate for productivity, and smooths relations between labour and management.

Mr. W.E. Emerson, Marketing Manager and Director of the Pepsi-Cola Co. of Canada Ltd., discussed the comprehensive subject of Marketing, which he illustrated through the Marketing Department of his plant.

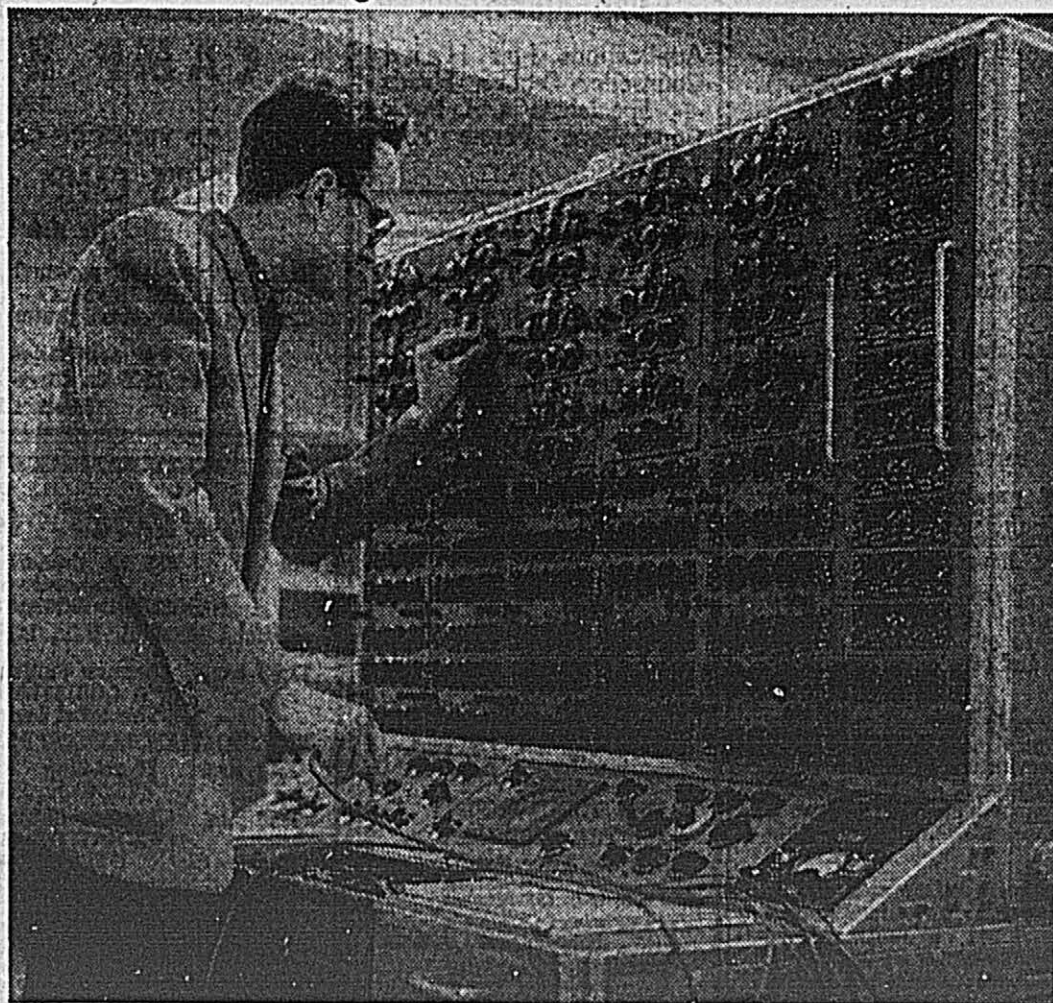

The department's concern is with the efficient production selling of the product. To accomplish these things, the consumer's tastes, incomes, preferences in such things as packaging, must be known.

The fifth speaker, Mr. J. M. McAvity, D.S.O., M.B.E., Chairman of the House of Seagram, discussed Business Administration.

Some of the qualities he deemed necessary for a career in Management were the ability to control oneself, to think ahead, and to make prompt and accurate decisions.

Mr. R. C. Coleman, director of the Placement Service, was the final speaker. He expounded on how to get a job after graduation in one of the many fields open.

George's New Switchboard

BESIDES the female engineers, one of the more interesting things contained in the new engineering building is this analog computer. This device is used to solve physical problems (such as the stress on an automobile spring) which can be described by mathematical operations. These are then solved by means of electric circuits in the computer.

Courting Politics

As we have already said, the proposed student court should be seriously investigated by the Students' Executive Council. We have pointed out some benefits of the plan, and Wednesday we discussed certain modifications. In this editorial certain of the disadvantages of such an institution will be mentioned.

One of the main ideas of the court was to put it above "student politics". It must be considered, however, that law students are among the most active extra-curricularly on the McGill campus. There is always the danger of formerly active students being appointed to the court. This could very easily lead to accusations of bias on the part of the court. Conceivably, the proposed organization would be a body of "stature". Would not the prestige of the post of student justice lead to "political" manoeuvring for such an appointment? The moment such an appointment became even the slightest bit political, the prestige, and hence the purpose of the court, would be destroyed. For if the court were to be a political organization, far better it be representative of the campus as is the SEC, rather than being a select group of law students.

There are other practical aspects which will pose problems. The court, we suppose, would be of especial value on emergency issues which were brought to its attention. Now fourth year law students work in the daytime, and attend classes at night. How could such a group assemble at short notice? Where would its members find the time? And if the students were chosen from lower years, the risk of political tinges would be even stronger.

If the court were to become merely another student organization subject to the usual campus gossip of "blocs", "politics", etc. it would be defeating its purpose. In discussing the entire plan the Council will have to consider whether McGill is mature enough to accept such a court without politicking, whether we really need a court, and whether the practical difficulties can be overcome.

A National Student Identity

The unanimous decision of the Canadian University Press to establish a full-time office could well be one of the most significant developments in the short, disjointed history of student Canada.

Canadian University Press was established 22 years ago to provide the student paper of any particular campus with news of other Canadian students. Meeting in Quebec this Christmas, college editors from every province agreed that there is enough desire on their campus for information about other Canadian students to warrant a permanent news service.

This indicates that the casket of provincialism in which Canadian Universities have so long lain, is at last opening. If it opens wide we may find, on a student level, a unity which Canadians since Macdonald, and before, have sought.

If there is interest in the affairs of others, there is hope for the development of a national student identity. And from this identity may we, the lauded leaders of tomorrow, grow a Canadianism which transcends religious and ethnic and provincial backgrounds.

Canada is a scattered country joined only by broad geography and a federal government. Our agricultural west squabbles with our business east, and our maritime provinces are suspicious of both. We are a bilingual nation with speakers of both tongues straining their ignorance to remain mono-lingual. We are a mixing pot of various religions and origins which, on some stubborn point or another, are loath to mix.

Any nation, great or small, is a unity of differences. We in Canada seem persistent, and among large western nations almost unique, in developing the differences and not the unity.

Canadianism will not come from passing a Bill of Rights. A national identity is one of those few changes which an Act of Parliament cannot bring to pass.

But Canadianism can come from an interest in the affairs of fellow Canadians, and from an appreciation — rather than a wariness — of the actions of others. Canadianism can develop from a student at Newfoundland's Memorial University reading about the activities of other students at the University of British Columbia. It can develop from the services of CUP and of any other student organizations which step beyond provincial bounds.

Letters to the Editor

Poem to an Unknown Politician

Sir:

To you Mr. Retired Politician, my thoughts I must convey
Not knowing your identity, I must generalize in what I say
I was sorry to hear that on seeing my poem you nearly cried.
Was it actually due to my poem or the facts I wouldn't hide?
You apologize to Ogden Nash for your "trash", which is the correct word, I agree

But I feel Mr. "Hit and Run" that you also owe an apology to your faculty
For they elected a man whom they thought would play fair in the political game,
Not one who writes derogatory poems, yet fails to mention his name.

If you are a retired politician, why hold the fear of being named?
Surely you must be justified for what you wrote, you oughtn't be ashamed.

Instead of your name, you state that you are a politician retired
Isn't that the wrong expression, should it not be "term expired"?
As far as I'm concerned this puts an end to this political game
If you have enough man in you, answer, (I won't reply) but state your name.

Irving M. Kirsch

Pakistani Commissioner Discusses Democracy

Most of the newly independent nations in Asia today are facing difficulty in practising the British parliamentary system they have inherited. After the failure of the democratic system in Pakistan, in a bloodless coup d'état in 1958, the army took over the power, scrapped the constitution and disbanded the political parties. After a general clean-up of the administration and several vital reforms such as the land reform, democracy is now gradually being restored in Pakistan. Recently the country elected their village representatives and president Ayyub Khan promised a new constitution by March this year.

His Excellency Samuel Martin Burke, Pakistan's High Commissioner to Canada, will address McGill students today at 5 p.m., at the Union on "Recent Developments in Pakistan". A documentary film "River Indus" will also be presented. Refreshments will be served. Students will get an opportunity to talk to His Excellency personally. Everybody is cordially invited.

Senior Cagers Look Toward A Double Win

by PHIL SINGER

The McGill Redmen senior basketball squad are on their last and longest road trip of the season this weekend. The team is in the sunny province of Ontario where they will run into two storms, the University of Toronto Blues tonight and the McMaster University Marauders on Saturday night.

At Hart House tonight, the Red and White meet a fired up Toronto squad. The Blues were beaten 66-60 by the Marauders in Hamilton last weekend and will be fighting to get back on a winning streak. The same holds true for the Redmen. They were dumped 54-46 by the Queen's Golden Gaels in their last outing to bring a two game win streak to a halt.

The Blues have five seasoned veterans on this year's team. Heading the list is Pete Potter, who starred for the Toronto football team in the fall. Last year Potter picked up 113 points in ten league contests and he has been doing as well this season. Also back is Jim Maguire, a 6'5" forward who was one of the Blues' better players last year also. He is an outstanding rebounder and possesses a fine jump shot as well.

In last week's Toronto — McMaster contest, the best man on the floor by far was the Marauders' Doug Marshall. Marshall was all over the court and chipped in with 31 points of his team's 66. The Redmen will have to stop him if they are to be victorious.

ULRICH BENCHED

A possible reason behind the McGill loss to the Gaels last week is the fact that Gary Ulrich, one of the better Redmen last year saw very limited action. He played for under two minutes, picked up no points, but had he seen more action the 8 point difference between the teams may well have been made up.

Women Beat Bourgeoys; Seek First Place Spot

Smooth play on the part of the McGill Juniors and a talented performance of Liz Bertram who scored 26 points, saw Marguerite Bourgeoys College topped 34 to 21 in the Women's Open Basketball League Wednesday night.

McGill is now second place, two points behind first place MacDonald College.

The team warmed up slowly giving, for a moment, a 5-4 lead to the visitors. This was soon remedied by Liz Bertram, who never again let the team fall behind. On the other hand Louise Belzile, almost single-handed, kept the opponents score close behind McGill's. By half time the margin between McGill's 12 points and Marguerite Bourgeoys College's 8 points was still too close for comfort.

In the second half of the game the pace quickened; neat passes flew across the floor, and the strong, steady playing of McGill plunked more baskets into the net.

The game ended, with the score McGill 34, Marguerite Bourgeoys College 21.

The star of the game was Liz Bertram with 26 points. She had however the assistance of an able team functioning in good style. The defence kept the opponents from getting close to the basket while Marian Groff and Ella Mae Bradley made some neat interceptions.

The Marguerite Bourgeoys' team showed lack of experience. Their weak zone defense was helpless before the fast-moving McGill forwards. The offense was ineffectual with the exception of two promising players, Louise Brassard with then points, and Louise Belzile with seven.

Elimination Bouts Sat.

This Saturday hopeful pugilists will try out for the McGill Intercollegiate Boxing team at 1:00pm in the B.W.F. room. The contenders in the three round elimination bouts are: 165 lb. class, Richard Brown vs. Michael Marshall; in the 155 lb. class, Jose Acura vs. Pierre Raymond in the 145 lb. class, Fraser Bailey vs. Andre Delstrange and Doug Foster vs. Brian Morris in the 140 lb. class, James Palmer vs. Bill Taylor; and, finally, in the 135 lb. class Bill Land vs. Cookie Lazarus.

The Red and White team will be captained by Pierre Raymond in the forthcoming Intercollegiate bouts on the 13th and 14th of February.

(EN ROUTE TO TORONTO; JAN. 22) The never say die Hockey Redmen leave this morning to make the long train ride to Toronto where they will meet the front running Blues this evening.

Fresh from a defeat at the hands of Laval, McGill is out to pull the upset of the year. Nearing the midmark of the hockey schedule, the team is now nearing the peak of its performance. This was evidenced in the closely battle against the Quebecers on Wednesday night. When, if not for poor and seemingly biased officiating, the Redmen could almost certainly have upset Laval's victory boat.

Due to a badly bruised ankle, improved defenceman Jack Robson missed Saturday night's encounter and his absence was sorely felt. Forced to play with only three defencemen, the strenuous pace began to take its toll in the third period when, as was the case in the last encounter with Laval, the Quebecers slammed in two quick goals until the team found itself again. But the damage had already been done. If anything was decided at Wednesday's game it was first that Laval is certainly not invincible and second that McGill has a far better team than most people give them credit for.

Each and every player is improving progressively with every new test. Mike Richards and Leo Konyk have attained the point where they are almost invaluable to the team. Of no less value are Bruce Hutchison and Tim Peters not to mention Joe Irvin and Steve Molson. Darraugh van Plew, though not a flashy or spectacular player, is nevertheless steady and dependable and is always talking it up from the bench. Dave Flam, a rookie up from last year's Intercollegiate Team, started off the season slowly; he had been having trouble with his skating but if Wednesday night's game is any indication, he is coming into his own.

All in all, Saturday night's game should prove to be a real battle.

The other day our vice president in charge of good news announced that someone, somewhere, enjoys Coke 58 million times a day. You can look at this 2 ways:

Either we've got an incredibly thirsty individual on our hands. Or Coca-Cola is the best-loved sparkling drink in the world.

We lean to the latter interpretation.

SAY 'COKE' OR 'COCA-COLA'—BOTH TRADE-MARKS MEAN THE PRODUCT OF COCA-COLA LTD.—THE WORLD'S BEST-LOVED SPARKLING DRINK.
